Are you the type of person who starts putting up the Christmas decorations in October? Are you currently reading this during a five-minute break from decorating your Christmas tree? First of all, where did you even get one this early? And second of all, you'll probably enjoy this news!

The Brickell food hall La Centrale is officially taking reservations for its upcoming winter pop-up, which will let guests reserve their very own yurt for a holiday feast (we'll give you a moment to Google "yurt"). Once inside your yurt (isn't that fun to say?) you'll be able to order from a special winter menu including meat and cheese plates and both savory and sweet formaggi fonduta. Wash it down with a special chai rye winter punch, mulled rosé or warm apple cider with cinnamon-maple syrup.

Your yurt (still fun to say!) can accommodate groups ranging from two to 12 at $95 per person. Service will run from November 6 through January 5 for lunch and dinner. Head over to lacentrale.miami.com/reservations now to book and make your yurt dreams a reality.
