

WE'RE CALLING IT: BRICKELL CITY CENTRE IS THE NEW MIAMI DESTINATION

And we're giving you the lowdown on where to stay, eat, and shop there.

By: Jodi Taylor

Photography: Alec Kugler

One tends to start imagining colorful umbrellas, sidewalk patio restaurants, sandy beaches, and the neon lights of South Beach when they think of a trip to Miami. But what if we told you that just on the other side of the Bay, only six miles away, there was a sparkly new city center in Brickell overflowing with cool new restaurants and bars, shops (hi, Chopard and Audemars Piguet), and even a cozy, chic rooftop patio that rivals its more well-known counterpart. Brickell City Centre has become a new go-to destination for us, and quite honestly, we think it should be the same for you.

GRAB LUNCH: LA CENTRALE FOOD HALL

Really, you can eat any and all of your meals here without ever getting bored of the options. Not only is it multiple levels, but it's decked out with everything from bars to markets to restaurants, cafés, even a cooking studio and wine shop. Each restaurant in La Centrale has a theme (and the decor to go along)—you can choose between seafood (Pesce), burgers (Caffé Burgers E Bar), vegetarian and vegan food (Stagionale), as well as a meat-focused, Tuscan-inspired restaurant (Carne). It's Instagram heaven, tbh.